

Facilitating questions for developing good conditions to empower experts by experiences' participation in social work education¹

Reflective points for lecturers

- Do I consider service users' experiences as an equally important source of knowledge in comparison to other sources?
- Am I curious and do I wish to learn from service users?
- Can I recognize and discuss my own perceptions and prejudices?

Reflective points for service users

- Why do I want to contribute to the education of future social workers?
- Do I wish to share my experiences with other people, including students, lecturers and other experts by experience?

Reflective points for students to prepare for the activity

- Am I open to learn from service users?
- Am I curious in discovering the benefits of service users' participation on my education and on social work practice?
- Am I open to share my own experiences with the group?
